

THE WHITE HOUSE

WASHINGTON

February 9, 1998

Congratulations on receiving the President's Education Award. Mrs. Clinton and I are happy to join your teachers, family, and friends in recognizing this wonderful achievement.

This award is a special recognition of your hard work and determination to make the most of your abilities. Whether you go on to advanced studies or begin a career, I encourage you to make the most of your education and become a lifelong learner. By doing so, you can broaden your world, discover new ideas, and help to lead our country in the 21st century.

Whatever path you choose, I hope you will always reach out to help others, continue to set high goals, and believe in yourself. Best wishes for a future filled with happiness and success.

Bill Clinton